MOTHER JONES IS:

Trusted

In a media landscape filled with bluster and questionable news sources, Mother Jones stands out. Since it was established in 1976, it has built a sterling reputation as a reliable source of national and international news. It has made an indelible mark by helping to shape public discourse.

A nonprofit news operation supported by advertisers, foundations, and readers, Mother Jones is entirely independent. Its award-winning journalists have attracted readers with compelling investigative stories for decades, and the magazine has emerged as a touchstone for people passionate about many subjects, ranging from current affairs to personal health.

99% OF MOTHER JONES READERS say they look to Mother Jones for news they can't find elsewhere.

Motivating

Consumers of news usually scan headlines and read a few paragraphs here and there before moving on. Their interest in the content ends when they stop reading. That is not the case when it comes to Mother Jones. Its stories resonate with readers.

Surveys indicate that most Mother Jones readers discuss the articles, or refer to them, in conversations with family and friends. Some of them have contacted elected officials regarding issues they have read about in Mother Jones.

	Mother Jones	US Average
Donated to charity in the last 12 months	98%	42%
Avg. contribution to charities	$1,464	$232
Vote in elections	81%	54%

Attended a public rally, speech, or organized protest of any kind	45%	7%

75% OF MOTHER JONES READERS say they were motivated to take an action in the real world as the result of a Mother Jones article.

MOTHER JONES IS:

Persistent

The first issue of Mother Jones was published in 1976 with a small San Francisco staff of 17. Today the organization has grown to almost 100 staffers, with three bureaus across the country, delivering high-impact stories across audio, video, and other digital platforms and in our award-winning magazine. Here are just a few of Mother Jones' most memorable stories:

PINTO MADNESS

Mark Dowie exposed the Ford Motor Company's practice of selling cars in which hundreds of people would burn to death because of exploding gas tanks. This story led to Ford's recall of 1.5 million Pinto cars to make adjustments.

THE 47%

In 2012, Mother Jones released clips and stories based on a secretly recorded video of Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney in which he said almost half of voters regarded themselves as victims and refused to take personal responsibility for their lives. The resulting backlash is thought to have played a role in the outcome of the presidential election.

GOING NUTS IN CALIFORNIA

James Beard-nominated food and agriculture reporter Tom Philpott examined the grave environmental impact the soaring demand for almonds had on the region that produces 80% of the world's supply. Because the production of almonds requires vast amounts of water, the stepped-up investment in the nuts created a big strain on a region gripped by the worst drought on record. Philpott's article raised a question that has become increasingly relevant: What happens when financial and environmental interests collide?

MOTHER JONES IS:

Illuminating

72% of readers discuss Mother Jones articles with family and friends. From US politics and the environment to social justice and criminal justice reform, Mother Jones continues to produce groundbreaking coverage that makes a difference.

Mother Jones has won several National Magazine Awards, including Magazine of the Year. The most recent winner, "My Four Months as a Private Prison Guard" (2017), examined life in one medium-security prison through the eyes of a journalist who successfully applied for a job there. This magazine feature was later turned into a book and is now being optioned to become a major motion picture. This is but one example of Mother Jones' reach beyond our pages.
